The Danish Football Players Association Spillerforeningen Announce Their Support For Justice for Players

Amsterdam, 29 January 2026: Spillerforeningen (SPFO) announced today its support for the Justice for Players class action against KNVB, FIFA and several national football associations.

The total number of European football players' unions backing the Justice for Players class action has now reached twelve. This announcement follows the support from the national players' unions of The Netherlands (VVCS), Belgium (United Athletes), Austria (VdF), Slovenia (SPINS), Croatia (HUNS), Bosnia and Herzegovina (SPFBIH), North Macedonia (SFM), Serbia (SPFN), the Czech Republic (ČAFH) and Ireland (PFA Ireland). It also follows the French professional footballers' union (UNFP) joining the action as a co-plaintiff in October.

On 4 August 2025, the Dutch foundation Justice for Players (JfP) announced that it is leading a class action against FIFA and several European football associations, on behalf of players who have played in European and UK clubs since 2002: www.justiceforplayers.com.

The primary aim of this class action is to obtain fair financial compensation for all professional players and former players, regardless of their nationality, who have been under contract at some point in their career with a European club including the United Kingdom between 2002 and the present day. This financial compensation is owed based on the CJEU's Diarra ruling (4 October 2024) – because the FIFA rules were deemed illegal by the CJEU.

A preliminary analysis by economists at Compass Lexecon has estimated that affected professional footballers have earned on average approximately 8% less over the course of their career than they would have if the FIFA Regulations had not been unlawfully restrictive.

Furthermore, the class action aims to ensure that FIFA adopts, through genuine dialogue, the governance reforms required by EU law, which include co-decision-making power for players' unions on all matters relating to players' working and employment conditions, in collaboration with the associations representing the clubs.

Michael Sahl Hansen, the Director of Spillerforeningen, said: "We support the lawsuit because it is essential that we initiate dialogue and cooperation on necessary reforms so that we can create a fair and legal transfer system in the future. The aim of the Justice for Players lawsuit is, of course, to get FIFA to engage in the dialogue required by EU law, which is the only way to ensure a sustainable and legal transfer system."

Lucia Melcherts, Chair of Justice for Players, said: "We welcome the decision of Spillerforeningen to join the collective legal action brought by Justice for Players. The European Court of Justice has confirmed that FIFA's unlawful transfer rules have, for many years, led to the systematic suppression of players' wages in the European Union, and the United Kingdom. This legal action seeks to secure compensation for the income lost by players and, at the same time, to bring about lasting and substantive reforms to the transfer system."

The support of Spillerforeningen underscores the growing solidarity and strength of the players' movement across Europe. Together with the support of UNFP, VVCS, United Athletes, VdF, SPINS, HUNS, SPFBIH, SFM, SPFN, ČAFH, and PFAI, a clear message is being sent that players will no longer accept an unfair and unlawful transfer system."

JfP is seeking substantive changes to the FIFA transfer rules so that they comply with EU law and reflect European values and principles of free movement. It follows from the Diarra-judgment of the European Court of Justice that all players were harmed as a result of the FIFA transfer rules.

An estimated 100,000 professional football players, men and women, are eligible to join the legal action. For more information, please visit www.justiceforplayers.com

JfP has instructed Netherlands-based law firm Finch Dispute Resolution, which specialises in class actions in the Netherlands to represent it in the class action. Dupont-Hissel, the law firm that is representing Mr Lassana Diarra, is also advising JfP.

This legal action is fully funded by Deminor, one of Europe's leading providers of legal finance, so that players will not have to pay to join the legal action or assume the financial risk of this legal action.
